

DR.HANS-MARTIN STOCKMEIER

Director
McKinsey & Company

- Dr. Hans-Martin Stockmeier is a Director in McKinsey & Company's Middle East Office. He joined McKinsey in 1991 in Germany and transferred from Istanbul to the Middle East Office in 2003. Hans-Martin is a leader of the European Banking Practice and co-leads the Financial Institutions practice in the Middle East.
- Hans-Martin has worked extensively with financial institutions in Europe, Asia and the Middle East. He has served clients in banking, insurance and capital markets. Hans-Martin has served a variety of capital market participants ranging from banks, asset managers, regulators and securities exchanges.
- Prior to joining McKinsey, Hans-Martin worked at Deutsche Bank in commercial banking and for the investment banking division of Union Bank of Switzerland in Frankfurt.
- Hans-Martin holds undergraduate degrees in economics from the University of Witten/Herdecke (Diplom) in Germany and Carleton University in Canada. Following a working period he completed his academic education with a Masters degree in Finance from the London School of Economics and a doctorate degree in financial economics from Humboldt University in Berlin.